GEN. F. E. SPINNER.

The Old "Watch Dog" of the United States Treasury.
The news of the recent illness of ex-United States Treasurer Spinner brought regret to all who have ever known him either in a business or a social way, for he was a straightforward business man and a genial friend and companion. But none will feel more sincere sorrow over the news of his ill health than the women employees of the treasury department, and in fact of the whole government. For it was Gen. Spinner who broke down the barrier which prevented their performing clerical work for the government. This occurred during the war when the regular clerks were disappearing to enlist in the army, and it looked as if there were not going to be men enough to go around. Then it was that the chivalric Gen. Spinner suggested to President Lincoln that an opportunity be given women to take the men's places where possible. It is astonishing when we look at it to think of the opposition this idea met with. But Spinner gained his point, and the entrance of women into the government service may be looked upon as a "war measure" just as Ben Butler's suggestion to make the "darkies" contraband.

Gen. Spinner was born in New York state in 1802. His father was a clergyman and the owner of the Mohawk Valley bank for twenty years. He gave his son a classical education. He learned several trades and then embarked as a merchant. He was appointed and held responsible positions in the New York custom house from 1845 to 1849. He was elected to the Thirty-fourth congress as an anti-slavery Democrat, and re-elected to the Thirty-fifth and Thirty-sixth congresses, though he was elected to the latter as a Republican. On March 14, 1861, President Lincoln appointed him treasurer of the United States, soon after which his wonderful autograph on the paper money became a welcome visitor in the households of the land. This signature, which we reproduce in fac-simile, will always remain one of the curiosities of the age. Since the general's sojourn in Florida during the past ten years, it was remarked that the alligators avoided his locality. Why this was could not be determined, until one day a large "gator" was noticed crawling out on the bank of a bayou where the general had, as was his habit, inscribed his name with his cane in the soft mud. The alligator stopped when he came to the signature, looked at it in a puzzled sort of way and then dashed back into the bayou as if the mysterious hieroglyphics portended some terrible calamity for him, at least this is the way the story goes.

Gen. Spinner retired to private life July 1, 1875. When he did so all the wealth in the United States treasury still had to be counted. Then it was that a deficiency was discovered amounting to one cent. To account for this a memorable recounting took place, requiring days upon days, until the missing cent was found and the general retired from the treasury, leaving balanced books.

The Canadian Cardinal.

On the receipt recently of the announcement that Archbishop Taschereau had been elevated to the honor of a place in the college of cardinals, the people of Quebec celebrated the event by pyrotechnic displays. Here as elsewhere throughout Canada, commemorative services were held in the churches to show their appreciation of their old prelate. The reason for all this is that this kindly old man has, for the forty-four years that he has been a priest and shepherd among them, given his time, talents and even offered his life in their behalf. One of his first acts after his elevation to the ministry was to give his services to the sick and dying in the hospitals of Grosse Ile. It was in 1847, when an epidemic of typhus fever in its most aggravated form broke out among the emigrants and they were dying by the hundreds in these hospitals. The young Father Taschereau begged to be allowed to minister to them. His wish was granted, and he himself contracted the awful malady. His life was spared, though, to offer it many times since to the service of the needy. Father Taschereau's self-sacrifice was all the more commendable from the fact of his distinguished family connections. His mother was from the Panet family, and his own name is one of the most distinguished in lower Canada, his father was a leading member of parliament. His brother, Jean Thomas Taschereau, was on the supreme court bench of Canada. His nephew E. Desjarais is at present on the bench of that court, another nephew, Henri T., being a judge of the superior court of Quebec, and a third, Lelievre, is a member of the Canadian commons.

Cardinal Taschereau was born near Quebec. He is now in his 88th year. He was ordained a priest at the age of 23. He was subsequently appointed professor of mental philosophy, director of studies and superior of the Seminary of Quebec. He was made professor of canon law in Laval university in 1856, and administrator of the diocese in 1870. He was consecrated archbishop of Quebec March 19, 1871. He stands high in his church as a theologian. His cardinal's barrette arrives about June 10, and is the official insignia of the privilege which he now has of voting for or even becoming the successor of Leo XIII as pope.

CINCINNATI EVENTS.

THE NEW LINCOLN CLUB HOUSE AND THE ART MUSEUM.

Two May Dedications, One to Politics, the Other to Art—A Rich and Powerful Republican Club—A Noble School of Design.

Whatever other cities may be or claim, Cincinnati certainly has had the most public-spirited wealthy citizens of any place in the United States. During the month of May two more magnificent buildings were completed and dedicated there, which never would have been constructed only for the liberality of Cincinnati citizens.

One of these is the new Lincoln club house, the finest political club building in the country outside of New York city. The history of the club itself is of interest. It is the most influential Republican organization in Ohio. It has supplied from its members four governors and two lieutenant governors to the state, as well as two United States senators. At every election crowd of citizens assemble inside and outside its walls to get returns. They wait all night often. Every dispatch is read to the throng as fast as it comes in. When one announces Republican gains the crowd cheers and waits impatiently for the next count to be heard from. When the returns are all in, if it is a Republican victory, a prominent officer in the club climbs out upon the balcony and makes a triumphant speech to the throng, who cheer themselves hoarse. Then a band plays, they go off and refresh themselves.

NEW LINCOLN CLUB HOUSE.

The club was founded in February, 1872. They rented what had been a commodious private residence, at the corner of Race and Eighth streets. They occupied it until they fell. Then they bought it and the lot for $40,000. By that time, however, the famous club had outgrown its quarters, and the purchase was made for the purpose of enlarging accommodations. The rear of the house and the Race street front were torn down, and the work of reconstruction began.

The club is a wealthy one, and had a considerable sum of money lying idle. But permission was given to those who desired it to become life members and stockholders on payment of $250. One hundred and thirty-four gentlemen availed themselves of the privilege at once, and an ample sum of money was raised. When the remodelled club house was dedicated this May, there was a dollar of debt hanging over the organization.

The building is of pressed brick and freestone. Plenty of stained "cathedral glass" is used in the windows and elsewhere, albeit very uncanonical-like sounds are heard when sometimes these windows are open. The internal arrangements—billiard room, bar, staircase, reading room, etc.—are perfect. There is, however, no electric lighting. Much beautiful marble, gilding, tiling and exquisite woodwork are to be seen. What will become of them after a few months' exposure to Cincinnati's soot remains to be seen. The club has a membership of some 600. The large hall will seat 500 persons.

The Cincinnati art museum is of national interest. It blends the two enterprises of an art museum and a school of design. The school of design has been in existence many years. The museum is properly an outcome of the efforts of a number of Cincinnati women.

Its location is unsurpassed. Situated upon a high knob of Eden park, far above the pall of Cincinnati smoke, it has a magnificent river view, which itself inspires a love of the beautiful.

Six years ago the first move was made toward constructing the building. C. W. West, a generous and wealthy bachelor, subscribed $100,000 for it on condition that other citizens of Cincinnati would contribute a like sum. This was done in less than six months. Cincinnatians are ever ready for anything from a mob to a May musical festival.

AMORY ROOM

Then Mr. West gave another $150,000 to the museum and died. Reuben Springer gave $60,000 in one bequest, David Sinton $75,000, and so on. The museum has an endowment fund of nearly $300,000, besides $75,000 in ready cash. Altogether, counting its art treasures and other belongings, this wonderful institution is worth not less than $1,125,000. A healthy beginning that for a young art school.

The amory room gives only a faint idea of the museum's beautiful and costly treasures. As far as its funds go, it is modeled on the pattern of the great South Kensington museum at London. For many years there has been a steady and wholesome art growth in Cincinnati. In wood carving, china painting and pottery many ladies excel. An art pottery, Rookwood, was founded, and is carried on by a wealthy woman there, from pure love of the useful and beautiful. The lady is Maria Longworth.

Her father, the late Joseph Longworth, was the founder of the School of Design. Before his death he gave to the museum the rarest collection of the painter Leaning's works to be found anywhere.

The city donated the beautiful spot in Eden park for the site of the museum. For three men, now, alas, all dead. They are Charles W. West, Joseph Longworth and Reuben Springer.

YALE'S NEW PRESIDENT.

Professor Timothy Dwight, Who Succeeds Noah Porter.

Professor Timothy Dwight, who was recently elected to succeed Noah Porter as president of Yale, is the grandson and namesake of a president of Yale, himself a graduate and successively a tutor and professor of the college. Thus he is identified by inheritance and by long service with its history, its traditions, its growth, aims, weaknesses and needs. He has been associated with most of the successful endeavors to enrich the equipment and the treasury of the institution, and has a perfect understanding of its financial requirements.

TIMOTHY DWIGHT.

Dr. Dwight is 38 years old, and is the son of James Dwight, who married Susan Breen, accumulated a fortune in business and sent his son to Yale with the class that was graduated in 1849. Entering the theological school in 1851 he was licensed to preach in 1853, and in 1856 he went to Europe and continued his studies at the universities of Bonn and Berlin. Returning to the United States in 1858 he was appointed Buckingham professor of sacred literature in the Yale theological department. In 1861 he was ordained to the ministry, and in 1869 he received the degree of D. D. from the Chicago theological seminary. He was a member of the committee for the revision of the English version of the Bible in 1873 and 1874, and since 1865 he has been associate editor of The New Englander, to which he contributed a paper in 1871 on "The True Ideal of an American University for the future of Yale College."

Professor Dwight is a believer in the elective system, and is expected to be liberal in his ideas of a university course. He is popular among the students, and is favorably known as a speaker, being a man much sought after at banquets. His means being ample, his salary as a professor has been given regularly to the theological school.

In 1866 Professor Dwight married Jane W. Skinner, of New Haven. Their two children are Helen Root, born in 1868, and Winthrop Edwards, born in 1872.

The Biggest Thing on Earth.

The greatest wall in the world is the Chinese wall, built by the first emperor of the Tsin dynasty, about 220 B. C., as a protection against the Tartars. It traverses the northern boundary of China, and is carried over the highest hills, through the deepest valleys, across rivers and every other natural obstacle. Its length is 12500 miles.

Among the most remarkable natural echoes is that of Eagle's Nest on the banks of Killarney, in Ireland, which repeats a bugle call until it seems to be sounded from a hundred instruments, and that of the banks of the Nahe, between Bingen and Coblenz, which repeats a sound seventeen times.

The most remarkable artificial echo known is that of the Castle of Simonetta, about two miles from Milan. It is occasioned by the existence of two parallel walls of considerable length. It repeats the report of a pistol sixty times.

The most remarkable whirlpool is the maelstrom of the northwest coast of Norway, at the southwest of Moskenes, the most southerly of the Lofoden Isles. It was once supposed to be unfathomable, but the depth has been shown not to exceed twenty fathoms.

The greatest cataract in the world is that of Niagara. The horseshoe fall on the Canadian side, has a perpendicular descent of 158 feet. The height of the American fall is 167 feet. The Horseshoe fall, which carries a larger volume of water than the American fall, is about 600 yards wide and extends from the Canadian shore to Goat Island.

The biggest diamond in the world, if indeed it be a diamond, is the Brezanka, which forms a part of the Portuguese crown jewels. It weighs 1860 carats. However, not a little doubt exists of its being a diamond, as the government has never allowed it to be tested. It was found in Brazil in 1741.

The largest tested but uncut diamond is the Matiam, belonging to the Rajah of Matiam, in Borneo. It is of pure water, weight 387 carats, and is of pear shape, indented at the thick end. It was found about 1760 at Landark, in Borneo. It has been the cause of a sanguinary war.

The disagreeable operation of forcing liquids into the head, and the use of exciting snuffs, are being superseded by Ely's Cream Balm, a cure for Catarrh, Cold in the Head and Hay Fever. It is a safe and pleasant remedy being easily applied with the finger. It is curing cases which have defied the doctors. Price 50c.

I have myself used Ely's Cream Balm (being afflicted with catarrh) with satisfactory results, and recommend it to all suffering with this terrible disease. It is giving my trade universal satisfaction. F. Gackenhelm, Druggist, Van Wert, Ohio.
